

Ensure Your Board Chair Gets Off to a Great Start

Give your new Board Chair the advantage of getting up to speed quickly and thoroughly. The Hospice Board Chair Advantage PLUS+ program provides Chief Executives and new Board Chairs (or chairs-elect) the tools to accelerate moving to the next level of high-impact governance. A 3-month on-ramp for Hospice Board Chairs is led by hospice and board governance expert, Bill Musick, and supplemented by peer interaction via full year's access to Hospice Governance Academy® on-line modules.

Accelerate Your Chair's Readiness to Lead a High-Performing Board

Hospice Board Chair Advantage prepares Board Chairs to hit the ground running as a key thought partner to the Chief Executive, as well as the board's facilitator and leader. Chief Executives participate with their board chairs in six sessions that define goals, and look at opportunities for moving to the next level of high board performance, what makes a great board chair, how to create a stellar chair-chief executive relationship, and customized topics leading to an action plan for implementation in the coming year.

Sign-up your new or incoming Board Chair

Register with your new or incoming Board Chair and unlock all of the benefits and tools this intimate, hands-on, and focused opportunity has to offer. Chief Executives will have the opportunity to partner in setting expectations, asking questions, and sharing feedback throughout the process. HBCA+ may also help make the difference for reluctant board chair candidates.

How it Works

Month 1	Kick Off Meeting
Month 1	High Performance Boards
Month 2	Chief Executive-Board Chair Relationship
Month 2	What Makes a Great Board Chair
Month 3	Advanced Topics for Board Chairs
Month 3	Action Planning

Are your aspirations for your board being frustrated by one of these limiting beliefs?

Belief #1: Pick a good board chair and then hope for the best.

We want to believe if we pick the best available person to chair the board that they'll do a great job. Without intentional effort to onboard a new board chair: figuring out how to best work with the chief executive in a productive fashion, modifying their relationship to the rest of the board in this new role, and determining priorities for the board's work during their term, you may find yourself falling short of your aspirations.

Belief #2: Board members, and chairs in particular, are too busy to spend time learning.

Board members ARE too busy to waste time in meetings that don't add value, but our experience shows us that board members want to learn, want to be engaged, and want to add value. Tools like HGA, with a 4.8 out of 5 rating by users, is one way. Hospice Board Chair Advantage takes you even further with less effort on your part.

"HGA's short videos make it easy to stay up to date on the latest issues facing hospices and to refresh our knowledge so that we can be more effective in our roles. One of the exciting things about this platform is that helps us to focus on a few key things and not feel overwhelmed."

- Frank Puglisi, Hospice EastBay Board Chair

Belief #3: It can be dangerous for board members and chairs to learn independently.

I think most of us who have been chief executives have experienced angst when a board member brings in “independent” information and the fear that this information will take the member and the rest of the board down a rabbit hole that is not a priority for the board and organization. The solution is not to create a “bobble-head board,” where a board is only fed information from the Chief Executive and everyone politely nods their heads in agreement, but rather to build a board room culture where members feel comfortable raising questions, and where members feel equally comfortable to remind colleagues of their role and their priorities. This goes a lot further to build trust and add value.

“In all of my years volunteering on boards, and there have been several, this is the first time that I have received such an in-depth understanding of the mission and goals of the organization right from the get-go. The HGA training has made me energized and prepared to serve!”

– Jim Preston, Emmanuel Hospice Board of Directors

What we believe, and support hospice executives and boards to accomplish.

High-performing governance starts with arming the Chief Executive and Board Chair with the tools and tactics they need to successfully guide and influence not only a board, but a board that is fully engaged, that understands its roles and responsibilities, and models and champions a culture of integrity, fairness and respect. The Hospice Board Chair Advantage PLUS+ program supports new and/or incoming Board Chairs in a 3-month customized course on advanced topics of hospice board governance and leadership. Participants will work directly with Integriti3D President and hospice governance expert, Bill Musick, to identify areas of strength and opportunities for growth. Participants will also be connected to a broader network of other Board Chairs for networking opportunities.

“Bill - you personally add enormously to the process. You are clearly good at working with groups and synthesizing ideas. Watching you moderate the discussions in the on-line learning courses made me realize just how broad your knowledge of hospice boards really is and how much knowledge and experience you are able to bring to the process. Thank you for all that you’ve brought to us.”

- Dr. Kenneth Riff - Board Member – North Hawaii Hospice
